

guests. The luncheon was served at one long table and four smaller ones, the president's table seating 26, while covers were laid for four at each of the smaller tables.

A beautiful floral arrangement was noted at each of the tables, a large wicker basket tied with rainbow tulle, and filled with flowers forming the centerpiece, while smaller May baskets, filled with roses and forget-me-nots, and the handles tied with ribbon, in the rainbow colors, formed the plate favors. Crystal candle sticks, tied with pink ribbon, gave an additional attractiveness, and violet nut cups added their color harmony to the beautifully arranged tables. The perfection of the floral decorations, which has given Mrs. C. J. Coyne, the hostess of the Charlotte Kemp Hall, an enviable reputation as a decorator, as usual was matched by the delicious luncheon which was served in five courses, comprising grape fruit cocktail with marischina fruit, chicken a la king in patties, sweet pickles, olives, potato puffs, hot rolls and grape jelly, French peas a la mayonnaise, frozen fruit cream, cake and coffee.

Mrs. Wolfson, the president of the council, presided as toastmistress, and throughout the luncheon a clever program was carried out. Mrs. Saul Levenson offered the prayer, before the luncheon was begun. The achievements of the council as a part of the congregation of the Temple Israel were told by Mrs. Wolfson, and it was pointed out that just one year after the first luncheon, which was featured by the announcement that the men of the congregation had purchased the temple site at the corner of Eleventh and Burnett streets, the handsome temple edifice is nearing completion, and will be ready for the first confirmation of the local congregation the latter part of this month. The council's pledge to be responsible for the pipe organ was pointed to by Mrs. Wolfson as one of the real achievements of the year. The ability to accomplish much for the temple grows as the council grows, she added, and during the coming year, with the membership doubled since the first annual luncheon, the achievements of the council should be similarly doubled.

A tribute to the past president, Mrs. Louis Pink, whose illness has taken her away from home for a time was paid by Mrs. Wolfson, who introduced Mrs. Kaufman to offer the tribute for the council to Mrs. Pink, to whose efforts the existence of the council in its present flourishing state was ascribed. Mrs. Kaufman's beautiful tribute was followed by a number of other tributes to Mrs. Pink, every speaker mentioning the wonderful inspiration which the much loved member had been, and the power which her inspiration still held, even from a distance.

Mrs. Rose Reisenberg offered a toast "To the New Temple," with peculiar fitness, since at the luncheon last year her toast had been an appeal for a temple.

Mrs. Horwitz in her toast "To Our Absent Members," read messages from Mrs. Pink, Mrs. Markowitz and Mrs. Sam Kruger, all out of the city. Mrs. Kruger's message was in verse, exceedingly clever, and full of fun, with all the members remembered, and Mrs. Markowitz' verse was in similar vein. Mrs. Horwitz concluded with an original toast, in verse, which was applauded as one of the most brilliant of the various interesting toasts given.

Mrs. Goldberg, wife of Dr. David Goldberg, the rabbi, in her toast, spoke of the pleasure that she and Dr. Goldberg have experienced in being in Wichita Falls and a part of the enthusiastic congregation.

The financial side of the council was explained by Mrs. J. Cohen, the treasurer, and the report showed a very flourishing condition, as the result of the work of the year.

The two visitors, Mrs. J. A. Kemp and Mrs. John W. Naylor, also responded to toasts.

Following the program Mrs. Wolfson provided an amusing few minutes by presenting, with much seriousness, various mementoes to her official board, which had served with her the past year. The gifts were all bric-a-bracs either on the office held or on some individual characteristic, and caused much merriment.

The opening of the nuts boxes in which the members have been collecting their pennies, showed a very good amount to be added to the treasury as a result of the penny offerings.

Those enjoying this delightful affair were: Miss Rose Reisenberg, Mesdames Friedner, Liebold, Greenberg, Lazarus, J. Cohen, Horwitz, Morris, Steigman, Wolfson, Art, Juster, Becker, Veros, Paul, Reisenberg, Pink, of St. Louis, Goldberg, Dampf, Kaufman, Levenson, Marcus, Kleinman, Charles Cohen, Zundeowitz, Goldstucker, J.
